AMCIS 2018 featured more than 300 completed papers, within 29 tracks and 147 minitracks. Each track identified its Best Paper in Track winner and those were then judged by the Best Paper Review Committee to identify the top three papers of AMCIS 2018.

Winner of the AMCIS 2018 Best Paper was Decision Support for Urban E-Grocery Operations by Max Leyerer, Leibniz Universität Hannover; Marc-Oliver Sonneberg, Leibniz Universität Hannover; and Michael H. Breitner, Leibniz Universität Hannover.

First runner up for AMCIS 2018 Best Paper was Archetypes for Industry 4.0 Business Model Innovations by Jörg Weking, Technical University of Munich; Maria Stöcker, Technical University of Munich; Marek Kowalkiewicz, Queensland University of Technology; Markus Böhm, Technical University of Munich; and Helmut Krcmar, Technical University of Munich.

Second runner up for AMCIS 2018 Best Paper was Be Careful What You Read - Evidence of Demand-Driven Media Bias by Hang Dong, IE University; Jie Ren, Fordham University; and Jeffrey V. Nickerson, Stevens Institute of Technology.

Special thanks to members of the Best Paper Review Committee, who included:

- Robert Davison, City University of Hong Kong
- Mark Keil, Georgia State University
- Suprateek Sarker, University of Virginia
- Susan Winter, University of Maryland
- Martin Santana, ESAN, Peru
